CHROME FRETS – SILKY STRINGS

There have been lots of magic cleaners, lubricators and string life improvers over the years - and most of them were hastily purchased and now spent their lives lurking at the bottom of gig bags. As an all-in-one string cleaner, fingerboard lubricator and fret polisher designed to be applied with the guitar strung up, though, Chrome Frets have got it right.

A leather pad and polishing cloth are used to apply and buff the magical ingredient, Teflowax - a liquid form of Teflon blended with a mild solvent to break down grime plus a dash of quality wax to leave everything gleaming. It's simple to use, and on our grotty guinea pig Strat it blitzed through a year's worth of neglect in minutes. It's also silicone-free so it won't leave smear marks and build-up on painted surfaces, and it can also be used to lubricate any string contact points like the nut and the bridge saddles. Expect a huge number of these to drop into stockings all over the land this Christmas.
